

In Louisiana

(Cajun Food)

Louisiana Cheese Ball (Blonde Tod Ball) .....	123
Artichoke-Shrimp Creole Salad (Chokin' For Freddy) .....	123
Creole White Bean Soup (Lovejoy Beans) .....	124
Cajun Potatoes (Bubba's Studding) .....	124
Crawfish & Cream Cheese Soup (He Crawfished Her).....	125
Louisiana Roast Beef (If You Aren't Slitting You Aren't Fitting).....	126
Chicken Creole (Cajun Spatchcock).....	127
Crawfish Pie (Mud Bug or Jayne Bug).....	128
Oyster-Shrimp Pasta (Limpy At The Boat House) .....	129
Sweet Cajun Shrimp & Rice (Hot & Sweet Tiger).....	130
Louisiana Jambalaya (Balayez) .....	131
Chocolate Praline Bundt Cake (Pure D Goode).....	132

You Might Be A Blonde Cajun If...

- ...you start an angel food cake with a roux.
- ...you think a lobster is a crawfish on steroids.
- ...you think ground hog day and boucherie day are the same holiday.
- ...you take a bite of 5-alarm Texas chili and reach for the Tabasco.
- ...you pass up a trip abroad to go to the crawfish festival in Breaux Bridge.
- ...your children's favorite bedtime story begins, "First you make a roux..."
- ...your description of a gourmet dinner includes the words "deep fat fried."
- ...your mama announces each morning, "Well, I've got the rice cooking—what will we have for dinner?"
- ...you sit down to eat boiled crawfish and your host says, "Don't eat the dead ones," and you know what he means.
- ...you don't know the real names of your friends, only their nicknames.
- ...you gave up Tabasco for Lent.
- ...you know the difference between Zatarains and zydeco.
- ...your dog thinks the bed of your pickup is his kennel.
- ...all of your dessert recipes call for jalapeños.
- ...you think the four seasons are: duck, rabbit, deer, and squirrel.